

CONTINUOUS REGISTRATION FOR THESIS/PROJECTS

When students in graduate degree programs begin their thesis/projects, they are required to maintain continuous registration during the fall and spring semesters for thesis or project until the work is completed. Students must consult with their graduate program regarding the requirements for summer enrollment, or an exception to continuation registration. Continuous registration begins the semester that approval for the thesis or project is received. Students who exceed the required number of hours without completing their work should register for their departmental designated continuation course until the thesis or project is completed. International students on F-1 visa status must remain continuously registration until the thesis or project is completed.

Effective Date: This policy becomes effective upon adoption by the Board of Trustees.

Adopted: This the 9th day of December 2011.
